What is TEHRS

Started as “The European Digimode Net” on LB0FI Norwegian Hamventures in May 2023 after a comment from Tobias DL3MHT that we should collaborate on a stream and do FT8.

TEHRS is not only a Youtube show though, more importantly it’s a community of hams from around the world, and a virtual club focused on elmering the community. We’ll get back to this later.

Sunday Live

EUROPEAN DIGIMODE NET

What is TEHRS

That quickly escalated, and already the next week we were going with a permanent show every week.

We previewed the name on May 28, and we have since done a show almost every week.

The first 16 episodes ran on LB0FI Norwegian Hamventures before we finally decided to spin it off as a separate brand and channel.

The first show on the TEHRS channel ran on September 16 2023.

But, what do you talk about?

But, what do you talk about?

The short answer is, as always in ham radio, “it depends”.

But on a more serious note, we talk about anything and everything ham radio. Everything from hams doing something we'd like to know more about to learning new things.

We focus on having guests when possible, and at this point we're actually lucky enough that people ask us if they could be on. Interaction with the audience is also very important to us. It is not about us, it's about the community and the guests. In that order.

WHAT KIND OF MAGIC IS THIS?

TEHRS is not only a show, it is a community!

Community? Elmering?

Ham Radio social media can be toxic, very toxic. It is in some cases more harmful than helpful for the hobby.

We have by purpose decided not to share any screenshots of comments here, but there's always "that guy".

That guy that always knows best, say that what you are not using will not work, and you should use something else.

That guy that claims that what you are doing is ruining ham radio. And that guy that simply calls you an idiot straight out.

Community? Elmering?

At least three of you here in this room is “that guy”.
Please stop!

Community? Elmering?

But, what are you doing to be better than “that guy”?

Community? Elmering?

We have a couple of ground rules.

- Remember that everyone has been new at some point
- Remember that everyone is good at something in the hobby, but not everything.
- Treat everyone with respect and understanding. Sometimes things comes out in a different way than intended.
- Always think how you can help and not harm the community.
- In short, keep the ham spirit going!

We have never had the need to moderate anything

Community? Elmering?

Most of our activity is centered around our Discord server. We have helpful discussions around a plethora of different subjects.

Discord is a real time chat platform, and allows our community to show off projects, ask for help, or participate in healthy discussions around our hobby. As a ground rule we are always polite and respectful to other members.

There is usually activity around the clock here.

In short, the show is the common denominator, but the Discord server is the bloodline of the community.

Hard to make the contacts. Only 6 between 2 & 10m and half an hour, despite having line of sight to the entire Phoenix metro area, and it's smog.

@DO7JZ they let you operate next to the patriot?

This is all good, but have you actually helped someone get licensed?

YES!

Meet Charlotte MM7HJI

Charlotte first showed up with comments on stream asking what HT she should get. She was not licensed at that point.

Your

HT

After that we decided to help her. She showed up in our Discord and asked many questions.

The type of questions that “that guy” would ridicule. The type of questions that would light a fire on ham radio facebook.

In the TEHRS discord she was met with respect and a will to elmer and help.

And we even followed up with two more streams to get Charlotte, and other new and aspiring hams, a good start in the hobby.

YOUR FIRST HF RADIO?

SHACK CHALLENGE

Charlotte got licensed in November 2024 as MM7HJI.

She is well into her ham radio journey, and she had her first HF QSO from the RSGB National Radio Centre.

It was a memorable occasion for Charlotte Hayes, MM7HJI when she visited the RSGB National Radio Centre last week. Charlotte, from Edinburgh, recently obtained her Foundation Licence and used the opportunity to make her very first QSO.

Supported by volunteer Simon, M0KBJ, and her family, Charlotte keyed the mic for the first time on the 40m band. She made three QSOs, with all operators congratulating her on the contacts as a new licensee.

She has also shared her progress on the TEHRS discord. We, as a community and not a show, really feels that we have helped her along on her journey.

And on February 2 2025 we brought her on as a guest on the show to talk about her journey.

NEW TO HAM RADIO

Is Youtube the new elmer?

As anything in ham radio; it depends.

There is a plethora of content on ham radio on Youtube, which makes it easy to look up and research whatever you are interested in.

A lot of channels, such as TEHRS, are both a community and a channel. This gives the viewers an opportunity to interact and learn from each other.

Attendance in clubs are down, and the internet communities provide much of the same interaction.

But, not all content is good content. And not all social media is equal, some places can even be toxic (read: Facebook).

Also, a virtual club cannot always replace physical elmering, such as helping new hams put up antennas, design a shack and so on. Online elmering is an addition and not a substitute.

Let's summarize a bit

TEHRS is more than a Youtube channel, it's a thriving community and a virtual club.

TEHRS is the metric ham radio show.

Youtube can be a great elmer.

And finally:

DON'T BE "THAT GUY"!
